He who planteth an oak tree looks forward to future ages and plants for posterity; nothing can be less selfish than this. In 1895, a little oak scion was planted in Atlanta. Since that time we have been engaged in nurturing it till it has grown to a good husky sturdy tree. This sacred trust was for our posterity and to their care and keeping we commend the future of this National Medical Association.

—Dr. John A. Kenney, 1933
